PRESS RELEASE - For Immediate release

Introducing:

Kaleidophone's second album 'Hero In Trouble'

(For release April 2015)

A collage of painful beauty, driving rhythms and lyrical vulnerability, 'Hero In Trouble' follows a year of tireless effort and late nights in the studio. The songs represent the band's intent to shine, through personal chaos, addiction and adventurous times.

The duly awaited second album is due to hit UK and European stores following the official launch party in London (April 2015) which will also see the start of a UK & European tour.

Described by Colin Paterson (BBC Radio) as "an English Vampire Weekend"

Kaleidophone have honed a style that's all-their-own and 'Hero In Trouble' promises to push into darker, edgier territory.

Described by Colin Paterson (BBC Radio) as an "English Vampire Weekend", these four lads from the South East are writing and performing intense, powerful music; mixing electronic elements with warm quirky guitars and fuzzy bass to create an exciting proposition for fans of international indie.
