TRANSYLVANIAN TALES

EKLEKTIK MUSIK FROM THE WILD KARPATHIANS

Having started as a folk singer in a musician family, Koszorus Krisztina aka Koszika is on the root of Hungarian, Romanian and Gypsy music. After getting her degree in Classical Violin and perfecting her craft in Jazz and pop/funk, she started reusing the inherited knowledge on her roots to mix influences, languages and styles with ease and joy.

Self-taught multi-instrumentalist and producer Szász Csaba accompanies her on the guitar and several other instruments, skillfully balancing the traditional and modern elements in their sound, and brings forward a whole bands' ample sound.

Taking inspiration from their past, their roots - Eastern-, Central European and balkanic folk tunes and melodies - they are looking towards the future, influenced by global music. Their modern approach to traditional sounds takes the listener on a journey: old, shamanic vibrations combined with a 21. century electroc nd sometimes electronic sonority - the place between worlds. Combining styles that are geographically distant they bring together cultures - overcoming borders and genres.

OBJECTIVES

Raising awareness to the vast and beautiful music of our region.
Get the younger generation closer to our traditions and music

Together they have won several awards for their duo performances as well as winning the MOST - Balkan Music Export mentorship program in 2022. Their strong passion for music and unique sound is sure to captivate audiences. They have a track record of success at international festivals and are confident in their ability to deliver unforgettable performances. We believe that their unique blend of traditional and modern influences, as well as their ability to connect with audiences through music, would be a valuable addition to your festival..
