

Telepoetic

Biography: Telepoetic is known for its experimental, raw and post-rock sound. Formed back in 2006 by Mohamed Desouky the trio is one of Egypt's most unique sound driven projects. The band has a big portfolio of live performances at events such as 100live and Dcaf festivals. Telepoetic has shared the stage with various international acts such as, Mouse On Mars, Jan Jelinek, IQBit and Erik Truffaz. Currently the band is working on new material for their anticipated second album along with touring their debut album Ensehab (Retreat) which was released in November 2013. Ensehab is a unique melding of electronica and progressive post-rock and was referred to by CairoScene as "a solid instrumental effort that takes unexpected turns that makes you happy you took the trip" Telepoetic's live performance can be described as an audio-visual experience as the band often uses light and visual installations to enhance the mood set for the audience what we do and what we hope for:

Music for the sake of music, for the joy of creativity and friendship and whatever is born of that equation is an attempt to inspire ourselves and others, to experiment with and express something of truth or nothing, free of ideology be it above the social norms of our time or just the mundane. Music that may be documented in relation to the time and space from which it arose in hope that one day it will inspire and be enjoyed by others of different times
