

Axon-Neuron Press Kit

Website: www.axonneuron.com

Facebook: www.facebook.com/axonneuron

Bandcamp: <http://axonneuron.bandcamp.com>

Contact: axonneuron@gmail.com

Bio:

Axon-Neuron is a progressive rock band with a lot of jazz, classical, and metal influences. It's an excuse to try something new, to take the old format of a rock band but replace the typical clichés with elements borrowed from a wide range of influences that span many different styles of music.

Axon-Neuron was initially formed in 2011 by Jeremy Poparad as an excuse to play some music one last time with some friends who were moving away from Ohio. In the course of four months, an entire full length album was written, rehearsed, and recorded and a few live shows were put on in Akron. The result was so enjoyable, that Axon-Neuron "2.0" was assembled to continue performing, writing, and recording after the original lineup departed. Our first album, "Brain Songs," was released in May 2011, with our second album, "Dreamstate," following in June 2012. We are currently hard at work at our third studio album, "Metamorphosis," due out later in 2015.

Video:

Axon-Neuron visited Wolf-House Productions on January 15, 2015, and recorded a live set of three songs from the upcoming "Metamorphosis" album.

"Shattered" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QthFmnwB9AM>

"Euclid" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZhVSXVgfBn8>

"Suspensions" <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=y2cQz1aaQzI>

Press:

April 3rd, 2015:

Prog Talk

(www.facebook.com/ProgandLove)

Excerpt: "'Dreamstate' has an infectious spaced-out charm about it and displays a brilliant adoption of jazz fusion and progressive music and is shaping up to be one of the more stronger and original prog album I've heard so far this year. Make sure you check this out!"

December 6, 2012:

Nasty Fancy

(www.nastyfancy.com/2012/12/06/album-review-axon-neuron-dreamstate/)

Excerpt: "Throughout the album's nine-track span, composer/guitarist Jeremy Poparad blends the elements of classical music, jazz and progressive rock to create interweaving tension and harmony that takes the listener on a cerebral journey.

Axon-Neuron anything but a band that gets together, strums out a few chords, slaps on a solo and calls it a day. From the raining synths that open the album in "Bloom" to the clashing call and response of piano and guitar before easing into a sweet melody with cymbals that splash like water droplets in "Danseus de Delphes," nearly every note and syllable is meticulously composed."

September 25th 2012 - Mark Johnson

Sea of Tranquility

(<http://www.seaoftranquility.org/reviews.php?op=showcontent&id=13389>)

Excerpts: "Imagine excellent female vocals and cool lyrics set to exquisite compositions. Sit back and relax and let your dream state unfold..."

"This album was such a wonderful surprise. Something out of the ordinary. Full of space and time. A fantastic Dreamstate...whenever you need it."