

FLECKT PETS

UNCOMPROMISING,

ORIGINAL

AND

RELENTLESSLY CATCHY

Fleckt Pets play within the loose boundaries of punk, crafting hooky songs with garage-punk fuzz, post-punk angularity and a free-flowing creativity. Their high-energy, flamboyant live shows captivate as frontman Tom Barber clambours and crawls as he engages with the audience and venue.

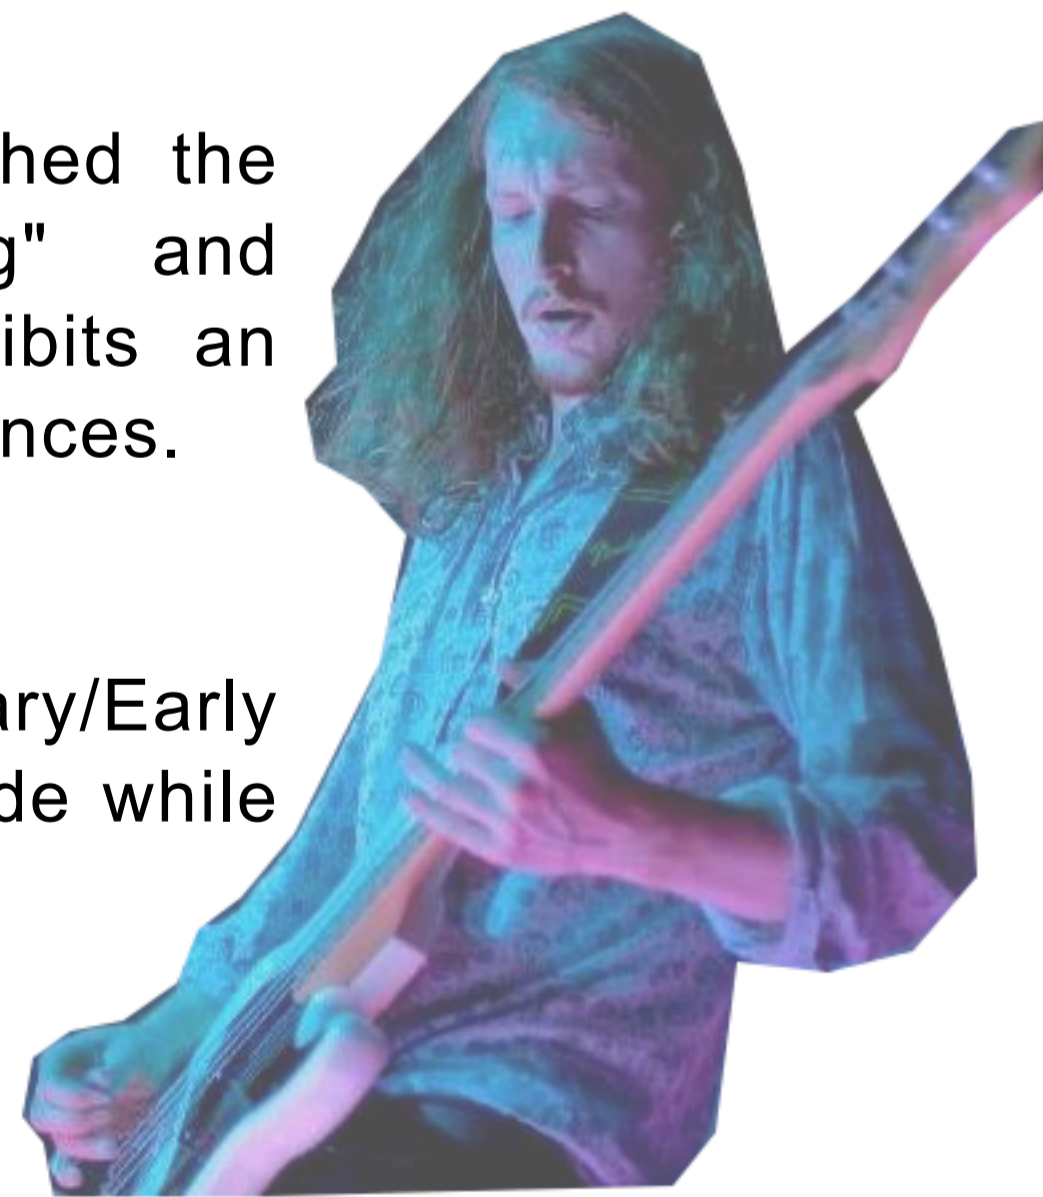

In 2014, the first DIY Fleckt Pets gig in Middlesbrough was shutdown mid-set set by armed police. It can only be assumed that the powers that be got wind of the iconoclastic, subversive and downright strange punk party that was about to be exposed to the public.

Undeterred, the band is gathering momentum from the savvy, the funseekers and the downright weirdos of the world as their reputation for relentless, urgent and captivating live shows grows and grows.

An early support slot with The Fat White Family launched the band's live campaign and their "uncompromising" and "refreshingly honest" debut EP 'This is our punk' exhibits an eclectic blend of post-punk, garage, soul and hip-hop influences.

Fleckt Pets' second EP is set for release late January/Early February 2016 and will see the band show their darker side while their melodic hooks and arse-shaking beats remain intact.

"A fearsome reputation for being one of the most energetic and unrestrained garage punk bands around, who are both refreshingly honest and uncompromising."
