PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
WEDNESDAY 2ND SEPTEMBER 2015

TSPSI CONFIRM DEBUT ALBUM LAUNCH

After recently performing to capacity crowds at The Great Escape Festival, 2000trees Festival and France's Freakshow Festival, The St Pierre Snake Invasion have announced that their debut album 'A Hundred Years A Day' will be released on Saturday 31st October - All Hallows' Eve!

Initially setting out to record an EP, the band went on to conquer eleven original tracks in under 72 hours with producer Sean Genockey (Jamie Lenman, Reuben).

Recorded at Rockfield Studios in Wales (where Queen's 'Bohemian Rhapsody' was famously recorded) in 2014, fans will finally be able to pick up a copy of the self-released debut album from Halloween night, with an album launch party planned at Bristol's The Stag & Hounds.

As a member of the weird and wonderful world of the music industry, you can now stream the album for review/preview for your October editions/blogs/publications – but we would ask you to please keep the link discreet. The link is just below - we hope you enjoy!

St Pierre began when songwriter Damien Sayell found four like-minded individuals who were bored and frustrated at not hearing new music that spoke to them. Damien; along with bandmates Sam James, Mark Fletcher, Szack Notaro and Patrick Daly, soon hit Bristol with a wake up call that no-one expected, but one which was fervently needed.

Damien's witty and satirical lyrics mixed with passionate and often frenzied vocals engage any audience member. Add to this the machine like guitars, bass and drums that serve only to construct a mass of sound, energy and drive and you have the mix of Refused meets The Bronx meets Mclusky that has seen St Pierre gigs a 'see it to believe it' experience.

Notes to editors:

The St Pierre Snake Invasion are a 5-piece rock band based in Bristol, England. They consist of Damien Sayell (Vocals), Sam James (Drums), Szack Notaro (Guitar), Mark Fletcher (Bass guitar) and Patrick Daly (Guitar). The band took their name from an historical event from 1902 when the eruption of a volcano on the island of St Pierre, Martinique, sent an army of 6 ft. long snakes to the mulatto quarter of St Pierre in a mad dash to avoid the flowing lava. They killed over 50 people before the town's street cats fought them off. A tsunami soon followed, killing all in its path, leaving only two survivors.
