

Bat-Bike are an experimental group whose recruits stretch from central belt Scotland to South East London.

They are responsible for the proclaimed social movement 'Chubby'.

Getting Back By BAT-BIKE
Getting Back By BAT-BIKE

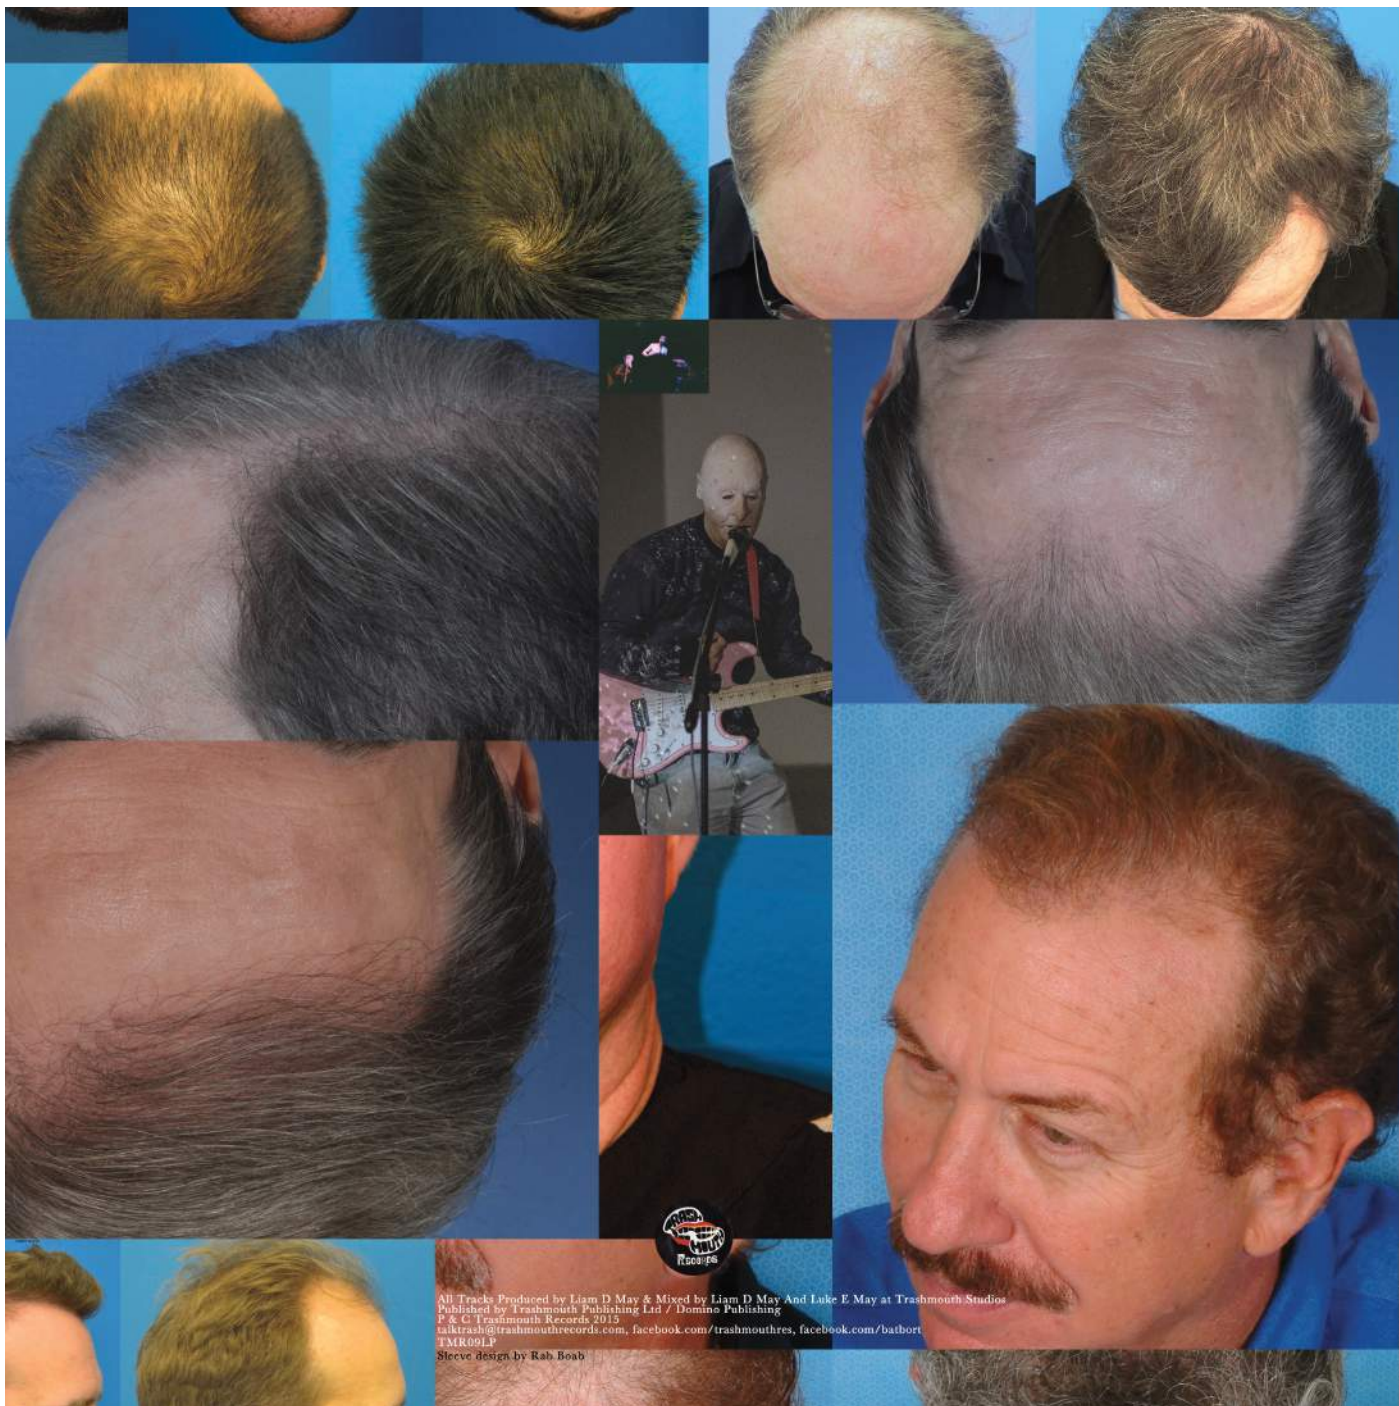

A wee boy goes to the van for a 10p mixture with the 10p his Granny gave him for pocket money that day. The ice cream man has his back turned to the boy as the boy asks for his treat. The man turns and his eyes connect with the boy's as he hands the child a paper bag full of melting ice cream. The boy is perplexed staring in bewildered amusement as the ice cream man starts to shove a bare cone up his own arse. Of course the cone breaks into pieces but the man fingers the bits inside, deep inside, never breaking eye contact with the boy.

Years later the boy is a man and is returning home for the first time in a long while. He hears the van approaching and decides to go over to where it parks up. He pushes past the waiting children to find a much younger man behind the counter, a much kinder man. He learns that the ice cream man had died many years ago...

...that's getting back.

They also have their own brand of hot sauce. Made in Scotland by Alan Trashmouth Records himself (who changed his name legally by Deed Poll in the name of contemporary art) BAT-BIKE Shit Hot Hot Sauce © is official merch, "an essential condiment for all fried food; and spectacular in a Bloody Mary"

All Tracks Produced by Liam D May & Mixed by Liam D May And Luke E May at Trashmouth Studios
Published by Trashmouth Publishing Ltd / Domino Publishing
P & C Trashmouth Records 2015
talktrash@trashmouthrecords.com, facebook.com/trashmouthres, facebook.com/batbord
TMR09LP
Sleeve design by Rab Boab

