The Blackbox

is an IN EAR management working for our drummer, guitar player and main vocal singer. Main vocal singer brings her own wireless microphone which has to be plugged out of the blackbox, cause that's where the receiver is installed. Same thing counts for the backing vocals and bass D.I.

In case there is no extra channel left we'll take the already existing channels and replug it through the changeover.

For all microphone questions we completely trust your sound guy who hopefully wont let us sound bad :-)

In case of a festival situation we are willing to take a view modifications to match with the already existing setup.

Usually we start the show with an intro which will be present as audio CD and USB plug
