

Joe Symes and the Loving Kind

New Single , Things Get Better, available 31st July 2015

Since the release of their debut album in 2013, the band have embarked on a non-stop journey all over the UK, performing in cities and towns from London to Glasgow. Taking their self-titled debut on an assault around the country has seen them pick up some major support slots including The Blockheads, Dodgy, XTC, Bloc Party and Alt-J, as well as hitting the Festival circuit, and coming to the attention of Creation Management's Alan McGee. The album has also been greatly received in America, and had magazine and airplay all over the world.

With the release of their new single, Things Get Better, the band showcase how they have evolved, formed from more increasingly energetic live performances, with a heavier sound, but still keeping their distinctive feel found on the first album. Things Get Better has already begun to attract attention at home and abroad, being featured on BBC Introducing, being played at Anfield (Liverpool FC) on match days, as well as already having some International airplay.

Digital release date 31/7/15

Joe Symes and the Loving Kind

Things Get Better

b/w I'm Gonna Find Out
Someday

Recorded at Crosstown
Studios Liverpool

Mixed and Mastered at Parr
Street Studios Liverpool

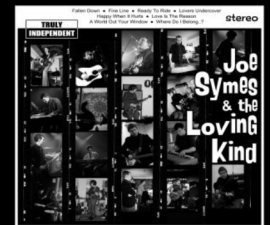

Released by Truly Independent
Records and Management Ltd

- 'scousedellia' - Alan McGee, Creation
 - 'this is a lesson in songwriting' - Jammerzine USA
 - 'a sonic construction which you're going to have in your head for days at a time' - The Independent
 - 'quintessential British Charm' - Mancreview UK
- Also available

Truly Independent Records and Management Ltd
- trulyindependent@outlook.com

For booking and further enquiries
- joeysymes@hotmail.co.uk

Website : Joe Symes & the Loving Kind
Facebook : Joe Symes & the Loving Kind
Twitter : Joe Symes & the Loving Kind

TRULY
INDEPENDENT