"[Lauren Ray's] vocal has a natural lyrical warmth and velvety smoothness, giving nods to Alison Krauss, Carole King and Norah Jones."

The National Student

"The country tinge illuminates smoky, sultry vocals fired by passion"

'Come To Me' is the first single from new singer/songwriter Lauren Ray; it is the first track from her debut EP 'Paying For Love' which was released on TAMLAN Records in October 2015.

This single and EP showcase Lauren's ability to write honest and emotionally raw songs and is the perfect introduction into her story telling writing style and seemingly effortless vocals.

'Come To Me' has shown its international appeal with UK regional radio already showing their support, press like The Examiner in the US naming Lauren as a "new artist to watch" and independent radio in Australia also picking it up.

Over the last few years Lauren has been writing, recording and gigging in and around London, LA and Nashville, co-writing with hit songwriters such as Ian Dench (Beyoncé, Jordin Sparks) & Martin Sutton (Leann Rimes, Lu Lu) and has also been writing for other up and coming artists.

With a host of new material having already been recorded out in Nashville last year, this single and EP was just the beginning for Lauren Ray who has plans to release her first full length album in Q2 2016.
