LINEUP

With great warmth and enthusiasm people are invited to a musical universe with no hidden agendas and pseudo-decadence. The music is straight forward and honest with something for most ears, and offers a charming, melodic combination of new wave indie, alternative rock, blues and pop with occasional touches of something jazzy.

The music is characterized by pumping bass lines, tight drums, and guitars with graceful use of reverb and delay. On top of this stands Linda Wik, whose unique vocals convey a clear message that can be anything from love and unfulfilled teenage dreams into considerations of the time in which we live in.

Difficult to compare AATW with anything else - the music is more of a feeling, a state or a notion. If you can't relate to that, one could say that Arms & The Woman is the deformed offspring of The Pixies, My Bloody Valentine, Pavement and The Sounds.

From the soulful and subtle to the hard hitting, Arms & The Woman is an ambassador of a mixed style that makes the concert experience a varied affair that you take home with you afterwards.
