TINY FIGHTER to release single 'Hollow Talk' on June 1st

Indie-pop group Tiny Fighter follow-up the success of their debut single by releasing their second single Hollow Talk.

Fans of scandi-noir classic The Bridge may recognise this reinterpretation of the show's opening theme. Full of dramatic piano, cellos and berserker drums, Hollow Talk represents a departure from the poppier sounds of their previous single New Century. Hollow Talk was recorded in Los Angeles and Stockholm with Daniel Reymer (Ben Frost, Foals, Girls Names).

Despite the staggering odds against them ever meeting, Therese Karlsson (a truck driver from Kalmar in southern Sweden) and Tim Spelman (a doctor from Melbourne, Australia) came together in Stockholm in 2017. Recently hailed as a "fast-rising indie-pop duo from Stockholm" (CelebMix) who make "The most unique tracks we've heard" (NeuFutr), Tiny Fighter has recently expanded from a duo into a fully-fledged live six-piece band, bringing all the dynamics and volume of their recorded material on to the stage.

Following on from their award-winning, fully 360-degree video collaboration with Kyle V James for previous single New Century, Tiny Fighter have this time teamed up with renowned Swedish filmmaking sisters Kentsdottir to create an intimate, cinematic music video for Hollow Talk, featuring vocalist Therese Karlsson. Part classic mood piece, part cautionary tale of attempting said mood piece, the video follows Therese through a day of recording where things go from good, to slightly less good, to downright bad.
