

Broken Record Press Release

Swiss Cheese But Funkier

Mary Keey is set to release new single, Broken Record, on May 18 2018.

Refreshingly toe-tapping

Ironically, despite the song's title, Mary Keey's new song is anything but. Fresh and cool with a cheeky hint of 80s electronica, Keey's latest offering is a breath of fresh air across a sea of identikit reality TV stars and girl bands.

Moving to her own beat

Born in Olten, Switzerland, Mary Keey's sultry voice is reminiscent of a young Joni Mitchell with a depth and emotion rarely heard. At first glance, the singer could be mistaken for Abba's Agnetha Faltskog but, that's where any comparison ends - Keey's style is very much all her own.

Since her first European tour in 2011, Mary's star has been very much in the ascendent with further shows in Europe and in the United States. Her singles, Closer and 100 Lights were met with great acclaim and her 2014 cover of Michael Jackson's Beat It received thousands of views on YouTube. The singer has big plans for 2018 which include a new song and video to be released every single month, a number of collaborations and a series of concerts in Fall (dates and venues to be announced).

The new single, Broken Record, is featured on a soon to be released EP recorded in Mary's own studio in Switzerland.
