

Poetic soul, dramatic folk, melodic bitch slaps

Antonia Vai

Antonia Vai is a Swedish singer-songwriter with Hungarian roots, born and raised in Stockholm. In 2013 she moved to Budapest and had a breakthrough on the Hungarian music scene. Known as the "bohemian soul diva", she has gained big attention on Hungarian TV and radio, was nominated for "Songwriter of the year" by Artisjus, shared the stage with international acts like Selah Sue (BE) and Yasmine Hamdan (LB) and played at countless festivals and clubs around Europe (see references).

- alternative pop-soul
- raw, explosive storytelling
- flamenco, balkan, world music influences
