AMAUNET

SWEDISH INDIE ROCK BAND

In the year of 2017 the Malmö based rock band Amaunet started playing together, and has since then performed regularly throughout Denmark, Germany and Sweden. Their sound ranges from pop to rock and is characterized by the singer Nari's rough voice. The music is influenced by bands such as Kings of Leon, The Killers and Coldplay among many others.

Amaunet emerged from the blues rock band The Black Pistols founded by the guitarist Oliver Miller, as a solo project in 2015. He wrote a few songs that later were recorded together with the Iranian born singer-song-writer Nariman Mirzaie. After The Black Pistols' first full length release in 2016 their sound took another turn when multi-instrumentalist Oscar Ahlbin, guitarist of the grunge-funk band OviRaptor Club, joined the band.

Amaunet's first release was "Word", which they recorded in 2017 at the studio Roasting House in Malmö. Amaunet continued to release singles independently and after the release of "Pilot", the band got signed by the US label Exquisite Noise Records, the same label who subsequently by the end of 2018 released Amaunet's first EP – Supernovas.
