

MORIAH WOODS

Bio

Moriah Woods is a multi-instrumentalist, dark-folk/rock singer-songwriter from Colorado, USA living Poland since 2014. Growing up in folk and bluegrass country, with a classical violinist for a mother and rock musician as a father Moriah is inspired by a variety of genres and artists such as Johnny cash, 16 Horsepower, Sharon Van Etten, Townes van Zandt and Chelsea Wolfe. Moriah's music has a broad range of folk/country and deepness that can be clearly heard.

Moriah moved to Poland in the spring of 2014 and began performing solo as founding the band 'The Feral Trees' – A full band was later added to the solo arrangements and brought about the first studio album in 2016 „The Road to Some Strange Forest” showing us a heavier and more refined side to the evolution of her music.

New Album

Moriah and her band are releasing her 2nd studio album 'Old Boy' to be released in September 2019. Inspired by the struggles of addiction and depression after the passing of her father in 2017 from complications with mental health and addictions.

The project began as a way of processing grieving behind closed doors and opened into a desire to share and reach into other people who might be struggling in a similar way as she has known and watched her father struggle.

'Old Boy' is a message that your story and your pain is unique but not uncommon or unresolvable. That we are not alone or alien in the sufferings of life and we must remember that we are in this together and the sufferings are part of the journey that lead us to a better understanding if we let it.

Moriah has a tour beginning in Kraków on the 19th of September for 20+ dates around Poland.
