Release

We're alive, so what's the "SECOND" step?

That was the main thought we had in 2012, when we started thinking about the second album. Life had indeed begun in 2010, when we released our first album (And Life Begins) in Brazil and Japan, with a huge acceptance, verified by the opening act for Iron Maiden, many festivals and concerts in Brazil with bands like Sepultura, Sonata Arctica and Angra and an European Tour. Since then, we lost the keyboards and changed the bassist, but we held on.

Along 2 years we focused on Brazilian and World rhythms, not only small pinches, but loads of them to this new work. Mixing this sonority into Heavy Metal with tons of riffs and grooves turned this new album into something explosive, proven by the collective hysteria caused by 'Coming Home', new track released on the band's Youtube channel, featuring Fabio Lione, singer of the Italian band Rhapsody of Fire and the Brazilian band Angra.

To speak about 'Second' means joining a multicultural trip of people with disabilities on controlling their own life in 11 tracks, produced by Heros Trench and Marcello Pompeu, from Mr. Som - SP, Brazil. The opening track, "Once Upon a Time" (check 360 video on <https://youtu.be/ng2KoOKI1BU>), shows the difference between this and the first album, with an exciting solo over a Rock n' Blues that would leave ZZ Top's beards up. Maybe the most aggressive track on the album, "You Won't Stop Me” talks about our daily fight against our worst enemy: ourselves. Until the epic “The Final Act”, the album still has the sticky “Thomas” (check video on <https://youtu.be/LxOBH5L1k88>), based on true events and the modern balad “Last Minute”, which flirts with bands such as Muse and Guns n' Roses. - “When I first listened, it was weird, after all, it was that same band I've know with an exciting and totally new vibration.” - says Lucca Bonachela, fan and band colaborator.

The search of relevance was the main theme of this new album. New attitudes in search for new results. So, to know how far Terra Prima will go and who was Thomas, your main act should be to give this 'Second' step with us.

Still in 2016 we released our first live album, entitled “Hellcife Live”, recorded and filmed at Abril pro Rock Festival, in Recife/Olinda, Brazil. It was released on Youtube and on the main digital platforms, such as Spotify, Deezer, iTunes and Google Store.
